SUPER RARE! See 25 Japanese promo cards first!

MEW! PIKABLU! TOGEPI! LADY BUG! KING SLOWPOKE! Catch the newest Pokémon!

WHAT THE?!?

Where did a blue, balloon-shaped Pikachu lookalike come from? What's a King Slowpoke? Mew has new powers?

You haven't wandered into a different Pokémon world. It's the same world, but new pokémon and the same-old pokémon with brand-new abilities are popping up all the time. In Japan, there are over 100 hard-to-find promotional cards and exclusive giveaways that entered the game from street vending machines, magazine inserts or as rewards for attending big events over there.

Here at InQuest Central we've collected some of the cooler promo cards for your reading pleasure. Since you may not be familiar with what some of these cards do, we've included English translations for each one in case you get the urge to play new versions of Jigglypuff, Onix and Pidgeot against your friends.

Otherwise, just check out the nifty cards. Some of them may never be reprinted in the U.S., and all the artwork for the vending machine cards were done by amateur artists who won a special contest in Japan to get their art on the cards.

POKÉ BALL Join the dance with a host of new Pokémon cards you won't find in English.

Pokémon ™ & © Nintendo. Cards translated from Japanese versions. Final American text may vary.
